Photography exhibit opens in Fowler Hall

By Cathryn Carroll

"Deaf and Hard of Hearing" is the title of a new collection of photographs of and by deaf and hard of hearing young people under 21 years old from across the nation that is on exhibit this semester.

The exhibit is the result of a national photography contest sponsored by the School of Education and Human Services and World Around You, the magazine for deaf and hard of hearing teens published by Pre-College National Mission Programs. The contest netted a total of 83 entries, all of which are displayed on the first and second floors of Fowler Hall.

"We hope that on-campus people will come by to see the exhibit," said SEHS dean William McCrone, who co-sponsored the contest. "It is an affirming, even cheerful display, and provides real glimpses of the lives of deaf kids today."

Visitors of the exhibit may find it odd that none of the names of the photographers accompanies their works. This is because the campus community is being asked to select a favorite photo, and contest sponsors do not want the potential of name recognition to influence their decision. Instead, each photo bears a number and its title.

Contest organizers emphasize that they want to give as much recognition to as many students as possible. For those who do not capture a first, second, or third-place award, these "campus favorite" awards that the Gallaudet community selects will surely be treasured by students who do not place in the contest.

Dr. McCrone said that he was encouraged by the cross-campus collaboration involved in the project. MSSD teachers Peggy Reichard, Wei-Min Shen, and Tim Scanlon, along with Pre-College marketing coordinator Susan Flanigan helped supervise student curators Sean Price and Kristin Tucker in the placement and hanging of photos.

Formal judging of the exhibition will take place within a few weeks. Judges include: Dr. Carol Riddick, a professor in the Department of Physical Education and Recreation, Shawn Richardson, a designer from the National Trust for Historic Preservation, Wendelin Daniels, art manager in the Department of Publications and Production, and Rick Schoenberg, an instructor at the Maryland School for the Deaf, who also has taken photos for the National Association of the Deaf.

The first-place photographer wins a visit to Gallaudet University. For further information, contact Cathryn Carroll, editor, World Around You, x5340, or e-mail CMCARROLL.

Tune in 'What's up, Gallaudet?' for the latest campus news

By Roz Prickett

"My friend told me one thing about an incident that happened on campus, my co-worker another, and a student told me something else entirely. Which of these is true? Who can I go to and know that I'm getting the right information?"

The answer to these types of questions can be found at the Public Relations Office, which provides accurate information to the campus in a number of ways, such as Public Relations' new weekly TV show, What's Up, Gallaudet?, which is on the University's cable channel 21 every Monday beginning at 8 a.m. and continuing throughout the day.

In times of change, speculation and rumors abound. It's the role of the Public Relations Office to dispel those rumors and to set the story straight. One way to do that and

Annual Charter Day Banquet, Awards Program to be held on April 13

By Daphne Cox McGregor

The Gallaudet University Alumni Association (GUAA) and the Laurent Clerc Cultural Fund (LCCF) will host its 27th annual Charter Day Banquet and Awards Program on April 13 at the Peikoff Alumni House.

The event, which celebrates the signing of Gallaudet's charter by President Abraham Lincoln on April 8, 1864, will begin at 3 p.m. with "A Trip Down Memory Lane On Kendall Green" with Francis Higgins, '36, as tour guide. Happy hour takes place at 5 p.m. followed by dinner at 6 p.m.

Dr. Donald A. Ammons, '74, a professor in the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures, will serve as mistress of ceremonies for the awards program, where six deserving individuals will be recognized.

The GUAA Outstanding Young Alumnus Award will go to Lindsay Dunn, '85, Gallaudet's special assistant to the president for Diversity and Community Relations. The GUAA Pauline "Polly" Peikoff Service to Others Award will be given to Georgia Ward Morikawa, '52, executive director of the Aloha Association of the Deaf, Honolulu, Hawaii.

The LCCF Laurent Clerc Award, which is presented to a deaf person for outstanding social contributions, will be given to Ausma Lidija Smits, '61, an assistant professor in Gallaudet's History Department. The LCCF Alice Cogswell Award for valuable service on behalf of deaf people will go to Robert L. Miller, E-'38, the first director of deaf-blind services (now retired) of the San Francisco Lighthouse for the Blind.

The LCCF Edward Miner Gallaudet Award for recognition of national or international leaders for promoting the well-being of deaf people will be presented to Dr. Cesare Magarotto of Rome, Italy, son of Dr. Antonin Magarotto, a deaf educator and co-founder of the World Federation of the Deaf, and himself an active member of the international organization for the past 44 years. And the LCCF Amos Kendall Award for notable excellence in a professional field not related to deafness will be given to Albert J. Hlibok, vice president and the first deaf partner of Berger Hlibok Sokolowski Construction Consultants, Inc., of Wantagh, N.Y.

An entertaining and enthralling first for Charter Day '96 will be a slide show of past and present scenes at Gallaudet that will be presented during the program and narrated by Sam Sonnenstrahl, '79.

The slides compare and contrast life on Kendall Green of yesterday and today. For example, President Bill Clinton's visit to deliver the commencement address to the Class of 1994 will be compared with President Theodore Roosevelt's visit to address the Class of 1906. The Suffragette Movement, which drew women from around the world to Washington, D.C., in March of 1913 to campaign for women's rights, included a large rally in "Ole Jim." This historical moment is compared to the Deaf President Now Movement, which improve internal communications is through this new television show.

What's Up, Gallaudet?, hosted by Sherry Duhon, assistant director of Public Relations and coordinator of the Visitors Center, is produced through the cooperative efforts of the Public Relations Office and the Department of Television, Photography, and Educational Technology. Each segment of the show will last 10 to 15 minutes.

The show's first episode aired on March 4. Topics included updates on the budget situation, layoff issues, and Enrollment Services' new program "Each One, Reach One."

Future shows will cover a wide range of topics, from sensitive issues to feature stories about star athletes or outstanding faculty members. The Public Relations Office asks that if you have a story idea for What's Up, Gallaudet?, e-mail GUNews.

Announcements

The National Association of School Psychologists has given a continuation of "full approval" status to Gallaudet's school psychology program through December 2000. This professional recognition by NASP reflects the high standards and dedication of the school psychology faculty to maintaining a high quality program. The school psychology program has had continued approval by various accrediting bodies since it was established in 1978.

The University has received official grant award notice from the National Science Foundation that it will provide full funding for the next two years—$489,051—to support the Summer Institute for Middle School and High School Teachers of the Deaf in Life and Environmental Sciences. The program, which is under the leadership of Dr. Kathleen Arnos, director of the Genetic Services Center, provides training in genetics, physiology, and environmental science to 24 science teachers of deaf and hard of hearing students from across the nation for approximately five weeks each summer.

The McKinley Group, a search engine company on the World Wide Web, has presented its Three Star Magellan Award for Achievement to MSSD's Performing Arts Program for the design of its home page on the Web. Magellan is the McKinley Group's online Internet directory and contains listings of more than 1.5 million sites. The award is given for depth of information, ease of access, and Internet appeal. MSSD's Performing Arts home page includes information about its program and season performance schedule, biographies of its faculty and staff, the latest issue of its newsletter CALL-BOARD, updates on trends in art education, and other features.

"Oppression Hurts: Learn How to Stop the Pain," is the title of a series of workshops hosted by the National Coalition Building Institute. Participants will learn how oppression affects each of us and how to intervene when someone makes an oppressive joke or remark. The first workshop is on March 23 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. (location TBA), and the second is on April 10 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Peikoff Alumni House. Contact KP Perkins by e-mail, KPPERKINS, or call x5465 at least three days before the event to register. (Contact Andrea Shettle by e-mail, ALSHETTLE, to be put on an e-mail distribution list concerning future NCBI workshops.)

The Blackhawk Chapter of the Illinois Association of the Deaf requests recipes from Gallaudet faculty and staff for inclusion in its upcoming cookbook. Roberta Garrison, cookbook editor, explains that many Gallaudet alumni reside in Illinois, and they would like to see contributions from the campus community. Garrison said that poems, thoughts, or interesting facts about Deaf culture are also welcome. Address all correspondence by May 1 to Garrison, 2915 15th Avenue, Rock Island, IL 61201, or call (309) 797-6851.

took place 75 years later—almost to the day—and drew supporters of deaf people's rights from around the world. Once again, "Ole Jim" was a prominent gathering place.

The cost of attending the Charter Day Banquet and Awards Program is $25 per person. Advance reservations are required because seating is limited. Make checks or money orders payable to GUAA, and send them to Daphne Cox McGregor, '82, assistant director of Alumni Relations, Peikoff Alumni House. The deadline for reservations is April 1.

For more information, call x5081 (TTY) or x5060 (V), or e-mail DCMCGREGOR.

The GUAA and the LCCF Awards Committee are also accepting nominations for next year's awards. If you know of individuals who would be worthy recipients, please send their names and information about them to Mary Anne Pugin, '71, GUAA executive director.

Rudy Gawlik, deputy director of the Family Services Foundation of Maryland, leads an activity during a family counseling workshop at the GUKCC Feb. 16-18. The workshop, which was for students in the Master's program of the school of Counseling and Guidance (summers only option), was the second in a three-year series sponsored in part by a training grant from the U.S. Department of Education. Coordinators were Dr. Frank Zieziula, professor, and Ruth Schilling, assistant professor, both of the Department of Counseling

GUKCC Highlights

The University Conference Management unit of Gallaudet's College for Continuing Education announces the following upcoming events that are scheduled to take place in the Gallaudet University Kellogg Conference Center. These events are open to all groups and individuals. For more information about these or other GUKCC activities, or to set up a seminar, call 651-6060 or e-mail CONFERENCE.

• March 22—"Standards of Care," an all-day seminar on the delivery of mental health services to deaf and hard of hearing people. Randall Myers, LCSW-C and an adjunct assistant professor in the Department of Social Work, will give an overview of the National Association of the Deaf's publication, The Standards of Care. Gallaudet faculty from the departments of counseling, psychology, and social work will lead discussions concerning program and policy issues affecting deaf, hard of hearing, late-deafened, and deaf-blind people.

• April 45—"Effective Business Writing," a two-day workshop addressing writing problems that professionals face—writers block, grammar pitfalls, and learning the correct format for writing business correspondence, and more. The workshop will be led by Dr. Nancy Kensicki and Dr. Cathryn Kalbacher, both professors in Gallaudet's English Department.

• April 20—"Buying Your First Home," an afternoon workshop for first-time home buyers who have more questions than answers. The workshop will be led by Jerry Parker, a licensed realtor who has been meeting the real estate needs of the deaf community for the past 11 years.

Team will develop conference plans

To assist Gallaudet faculty and staff in developing, planning, and presenting conferences and educational programs at the Gallaudet University Kellogg Conference Center, the University Conference Management team has been formed.

The UCM, a function of the College for Continuing Education, comprises deaf, hard of hearing, and hearing professionals experienced in conference planning. Serving on the team are: Bridgetta Bourne-Firl, coordinator; Krista Leitch-Walker, Alison Levy, Mary Lou Novitsky, and Dave Frank, program development specialists; Daryl Frelich registration specialist; and Audrey Wineglass, administrative secretary.

The team is charged with helping to ensure the success of events held in the GUKCC. The services it provides includes registration and logistical support, curriculum and materials development, marketing, and program evaluation.

"We are very excited about the University Conference Management team and its commitment to the Gallaudet and Deaf communities as a whole," said Gallaudet president I. King Jordan. "UCM recognizes the ever-growing need for continuing education, and we want to work with deaf, hard of hearing, and disability-related organizations at the national level."

The GUKCC, a state-of-the-art meeting place where accessibility assures a welcome and comfortable environment, can accommodate groups ranging from 10 people to 300 people.

For more information about Conference Center services, call 651-6060 or e-mail CONFERENCE.

Some of the members of Gallaudet's new undergraduate Psychology Honor Society are shown at an induction ceremony where they were recognized for their accomplishments.

Psychology Honor Society formed

By Margery Miller

Gallaudet's Psychology Department recently established the University's first Psychology Honor Society for undergraduate students. The society is expected to be the forerunner of a University chapter of Psi Chi, the national honor society for psychology majors. If the charter application is approved, it will mark the first time that Gallaudet students will be eligible to apply for membership in this prestigious organization.

Once the chapter is established it will be open to undergraduate and graduate students who meet membership eligibility.

Dr. Margery Miller, an associate professor in the Psychology Department, is working on the formal proposal application process for developing a Psi Chi chapter at Gallaudet. She is serving as faculty advisor for the honor society and will continue in that capacity when the charter membership from the national office is granted to Gallaudet.

So far this academic year, the following undergraduate students have met eligibility requirements and have received certificates indicating their membership in the Gallaudet University Psychology Honor Society: Barbara Blakeman, Susan Chernoff, Gabrielle Curtis, Daniel Deschenes, Karli Dettman, Adeleann Eberwein, Stefanie Ellis, John (Michael) Gournaris, Amy Gregurich, Jennifer Hampton, Afshan Hashim, Mindy Johnson, Jenny Lin, Elizabeth Lucey, Sherri Marlow, Carrie Nichols, Wayne Nicholson, Sarah Novotny, Lisa Parker, Theresa Rollins, Michael Sarrach, and Marjorie Tanzar.

Officers for the honor society are: president, Sarrach; vice president, Hampton; treasurer, Gournaris; recording secretary, Nichols; and corresponding secretary, Hashim. The officers are presently at work preparing the society's first program, a psychology forum.

A formal induction ceremony was held last semester for faculty from the Psychology Department and University administrators to recognize these students for their accomplishments.

Dr. H. Neil Reynolds, chair of the department, opened the program and emphasized the importance of recognizing the academic achievement of students. Reynolds was followed by Patricia Edelin, undergraduate program coordinator, and Miller, who offered their congratulations to the students.

President I. King Jordan sent words of encouragement to the student honorees and talked about his appreciation of the high quality of his undergraduate psychology education at Gallaudet that enabled him to become a graduate student. Vice president for Academic Affairs Roslyn Rosen added her congratulations and said that she looked forward to the work that this society will pursue.

College of Arts and Sciences dean Jane Dillehay encouraged the students to maintain the high academic standards they have achieved thus far. She stated that she was impressed with the number of students who have met the eligibility requirements and hoped that it would be an incentive for other majors in the field to do the same.

Gallaudet alumni who were psychology majors and who met the eligibility requirement will be able to apply for Psi Chi membership retroactively after the chapter has been formed. More information will be made available through the Gallaudet University Alumni Association in 1997.
